

A close-up photograph of the side of a white airplane fuselage. The word "Carnival" is written in large, bold, blue letters with a white outline. The letters are slightly angled upwards from left to right. Below the main text, there is a smaller, partially visible word starting with "air". The background shows a bright blue sky and a green ground line.

For mobile services

The image features a horizontal band of decorative Islamic calligraphy. The text is written in a stylized, flowing script (likely Thuluth or Naskh) in a vibrant blue color with a white outline. The letters are interconnected by horizontal strokes. Small, intricate floral or geometric motifs are placed at the top and bottom ends of the letters. The background is a solid, bright green. The overall effect is elegant and traditional.

The image features a large, bold, blue logo. It consists of two identical words, "Gondwana", placed side-by-side. Each word is composed of four blue, rounded, blocky letters. The letters have a thick blue outline and a white center. The letters are arranged in a staggered, overlapping fashion. The first letter of each word has a small white circle at the top. The second letter of each word has a small blue square at the top. The third letter of each word has a small white circle at the bottom. The fourth letter of each word has a small blue square at the bottom. The letters are set against a light beige background.

